In addressing a question about the raises and salary compression, the President responded that each dean and unit should be able to address those issues as they see fit. - 4.0 Upon a motion by Sen. Alford and a second by Sen. Harbaugh, the agenda was approved as amended by unanimous voice vote.
- 5.0 Upon a motion by Sen. Alford and a second by Sen. Heitmuller, the April minutes were approved by unanimous voice vote.
- 6.0 Officer Reports
 - 6.1 Pres. Press entered the following report:

Thanks to the outgoing Senators for their dedication this past year; thanks to the Executive Team, Secretary Jennifer Anderson and Secretary-elect Teresa Welsh who have worked tirelessly behind the scenes; a special thanks to the committee chairs and their active members; and appreciation for an open and collegial administration, including the President, Provost, CFO, and others who have been willing to listen to the Senate, share their plans, and act on Senate suggestions. This cooperative atmosphere bodes well for the years ahead.

Thanks to the hard work of Sen. Alford and his committee, we had held elections on time and later in this meeting will elect a President, President-elect, and Secretary-elect. Rotation in office is a healthy thing for any organization; it brings fresh ideas and new inspiration. The committee system is essential for good governance and should be at the heart of what we do, drawing on the talents of many senators. This year, thanks to an active committee system, we have been engaged with the administration through resolutions, which are carried to both the President's Cabinet and the Academic Leadership Council of the Deans and others. The enrollment resolution, for example, was taken directly to these two bodies and was acted upon so that we now have a new enrollment management team.

The year ahead will be a busy one as the University adjusts to a second round of budget cuts and finalizes pay raise allocations. Upcoming is a strategic plan, an external review, and follow-through on recent student initiatives.

- 6.2 Secretary – No Report
- 6.3 Secretary-Elect – No Report
- 7.0 Remarks from Provost Denis Wiesenburg

7.1 Enrollment – can view latest enrollment figures at <http://www.usm.edu/ir> then click on “Dashboard”. The projection is that the numbers will be up slightly. The issue is graduation and retention and we won’t know for sure until August. In the future, we will be able to project further out. In the past, students were counted who only came to orientation and this affected graduation rates so now we are “cleaning” the data and removing non-attendees.

7.2 The budget process was difficult but the deans worked together to assure that there is enough faculty to teach the students. In response to a question about projected increases in enrollment making up for last year’s losses, the Provost replied that it is difficult to say at this point. May is the month most transfer students apply so it’s too early to tell. If we can increase transfer students by 200, that is equivalent to 400 freshmen.

7.3 The Provost concluded by noting that the authors of the article in The Student Printz (<http://www.studentprintz.com/>) about his stepping down did a great job and what he was most proud of was the creation of a culture of trust that he hopes will continue, as well as the Student Success Initiative and the Teaching Forums. He ended with a quote by Geraldine Ferraro, “We fought the good fight and did the right thing.”

Faculty Senate gave the Provost a standing ovation in appreciation of his service.

8.2 University Committees

8.2.1 QEP

Sen. Barry presented on the Quality Enhancement Plan Research and Design Team Report:

The QEP Research and Design Team met on Wednesday, April 29th, and has officially met its charge and is now dissolved. As a reminder, the QEP process started with the QEP Topic Selection Task Force, then the QEP Research and Design Team. The next team to pick up the QEP baton will be the QEP Implementation Team.

The QEP has an official mark (what many may call a logo, but it's a mark), and the title of the QEP has been slightly altered to better represent its broader focus—Eagles Engaged: Enhancing Learning in Gateway and Pathway Experiences. The QEP mark was designed by Cody Bass, a Southern Miss graphic design student as part of Rise Creative, the Southern Miss student design agency led by Assistant Professor John Lawler.

USM's QEP: Eagles Engaged: Enhancing Learning in Gateway and Pathway Experiences

Gateway Experiences are high-risk, high enrollment, and foundational level courses (what we have historically referred to as historically difficult courses).

Pathway Experiences are experiences that are connected to a student's post-graduation goals and significant enough to be included on the student's resume or graduate school application, such as internships, practicums, research, service-learning projects, conference presentations, student organization projects, entry-level jobs related to field, etc.

QEP Gateway Goals: Increase the percentage of students enrolled in enhanced gateway courses who (1) successfully meet course learning outcomes and (2) successfully complete the gateway course. Five gateway courses will be enhanced as part of the Eagles Engaged QEP through the Gateway to Completion (G2C®), which provides a structured, evidence-based approach for improving performance in gateway courses. G2C® is part of the John N. Gardner Institute for Excellence in Undergraduate Education, a non-profit organization of faculty scholars. A group of 8 faculty and staff attended the G2C® conference last month, which was very well received. The Gateway conference faculty participants will be sharing their experiences with deans and representatives from other gateway courses on Thursday, May 7th.

QEP Pathway Goals: Increase the percentage of students who (1) report satisfaction with having opportunities to engage in internships, fieldwork, research, etc. and (2) engage in pathway experiences. Focus will be on degree programs currently without built-in pathway experiences.

A three-year timeline for 2015 through 2018 for both Gateway and Pathway experiences (separate timelines) have been drafted.

The QEP Research and Design Team voted to put forth the following four recommendations to President Bennett:

1. Set aside funding for the Gateway to Completion (G2C®) program for up to five courses for three years in a designated account.
2. Apply for G2C® participation, which requires support of chief academic officer.
3. Set aside course redesign funds to support G2C® course committees.
4. Hire Pathways coordinator for 2015-16.

The QEP Implementation Team will begin in Summer 2015. Their goals will be to continue development of plan, solicit continued feedback from University community, submit the QEP to SACSCOC, and host the on-site review by SACSCOC. Members of the Research and Design Team have been invited to request to continue on the Implementation Team for sake of continuity.
